

Russian and European writer's works on children in Azerbaijan language and their role in the development of national, enlightened children's literature (The second half of the 19th century – beginning of the 20th century)

Sevinj Rasulova

Author:

Baku City Educational Administration, Head of General
Sector, PhD in Pedagogy.
E-mail: rasulova.s@mail.ru

Keywords:

Children's literature, Russian craftsmen, European literature, artistic translation, XIX-XX centuries,
Azerbaijani language.

Abstract. The article first speaks about the historical period in which children's literature was created in Azerbaijan and the reasons for this development. It is shown that Azerbaijan's children's literature was created in the second half of the 19th century. After the inclusion of North Azerbaijan into the Russian Empire, the findings of the social-political, literary-cultural, pedagogical, European-style school and educational movement as well as the enlightenment-realist thinking can be considered as factors contributing to the formation of national children's literature. Generally, the second half of the 19th century and beginning of the 20th century are characterized as the period of development and initial development of Azerbaijani children's literature.

DOI: 10.32906/AJES/683.2018.04.32

To cite this article: Rasulova S. (2018) Russian and European writer's works on children in Azerbaijan Language and their role in the development of national, enlightened children's literature (The second half of the 19th century – beginning of the 20th century). Azerbaijan Journal of Educational Studies. Vol. 685, Issue IV, pp. 107–121.

Article history

Received: 10.09.2018; Accepted: 22.10.2018